

Helping hedgehogs

Something I will be fitting into my busy schedule soon is a morning at Howey Hedgehog Rescue Centre in Llandrindod Wells, helping the founders with their prickly patients.

Visitors can clean, feed and even exercise a hedgehog.

You can learn about correct methods of feeding and all about the conservation process of slow, careful release back into the wild.

At certain times of the year, orphaned hoglets (babies) are admitted and will need first aid treatment and syringe feeding.

What a fabulous way to spend a morning.

Find out more through the Good Day Out scheme at www.gooddayout.co.uk.

